

Déco at Fuorisalone with the Décosystem concept: exploring and celebrating the harmony between mankind, architecture and nature

Milan Design Week 2025 - Fuorisalone, Brera Design District - Décoroom

Déco's Décoroom, in Via Goito 3, Brera, welcomes visitors to Milan Design Week, with the theme "Connected Worlds" expressed through the Décosystem concept: exploring and celebrating the harmony between mankind, architecture and nature with an approach that respects and promotes these three fundamental elements.

Just like an ecosystem, today Déco is an open, interactive system, an environment that transcends the barriers between indoors and outdoors, blending natural materials with cutting-edge technological solutions.

For the company, this connection with nature is not just a matter of aesthetics, but a true requirement of responsible design. The entire range of innovative and sustainable products is designed to bring people closer to nature, reducing the distance between indoor spaces and the outside world, thanks to solutions developed to offer maximum durability and respect for the environment.

For Fuorisalone 2025, the Milan Décoroom has been renovated to lead visitors on a journey to discover the diverse world of modern interior and exterior claddings - for floors, walls and false ceilings - through new solutions, materials, finishes and colours, all with extremely high performance.

The company invites you into an immersive experience involving virtual reality: architects and designers can explore innovative solutions, try out new possibilities and fully understand the philosophy that drives the company.

Déco offers a new way to design the future: a future in which technology enhances the beauty of nature and vice versa.

Décosystem is therefore not just a concept, but a vision that comes to life in an ecosystem where design becomes a symphony of forms, materials, technologies and nature, where every element is part of a connected whole.
